

ABOUT US

Atacama Copper is a copper exploration and development company with two copper exploration projects located in Chile, comprising eight high-conviction targets across three tenement packages in well know mining districts. The company is primarily focused on Placeton's four identified targets, located directly between Teck/Newmont's NuevaUnión (Relincho and El Morro Deposits). The El Cofre project is located 700 km north of Santiago in the San Juan mining district in an historic cobalt-copper producing area but relatively untested for medium size-scale copper-gold potential.
